The Indians ended the '69 season with twenty-four wins LESS than they had in '68. In '69, the Tribe hit .237 and 119 home runs. The year before, the numbers were .234 and seventy-five. The ball club even scored fifty-seven MORE runs in '69...Ken Harrelson and Tony Horton were the co-leaders in homers with twenty-seven. Horton led the team with 93 RBI; Harrelson accounted for eighty-four. Horton led the Tribe in hits (174); Harrelson scored the most runs (83). "Duke" Sims added 18 dingers...In '69, the Indians pitching wasn't as good. The staff ERA, 3.94, was more than a run HIGHER than '68. They also gave up 200-plus MORE runs in '69 than the year prior. Sam McDowell led the staff with an 18-14 record and 279 K's. After a marvelous year in '68 (21-9, 264 K's), Luis Tiant was 9-20 with 156 strikeouts. Dick Ellsworth and Stan Williams were next winning six games apiece...The Tribe won only THREE season series. They beat the two expansion teams (Seattle and Kansas City) as well as a mediocre Yankee ball club. Versus the similarly bottom-feeding Senators, the Indians won THREE of eighteen meetings...General Manager Gabe Paul resigned his post July 1st after nine seasons on the job...Cleveland ended the year 46 ½ games behind the AL East champion Baltimore Orioles.
