As great as he had been in 1972 (27-10 W/L record, Cy Young Award), Steve Carlton (13-20 in '73) was never really himself for most of the season after battling through a tough-to-shake illness during Spring Training..."Lefty" was the major leagues' highest paid pitcher at $165,000. Carlton led the ball club with 223 strikeouts and eighteen complete games. He walked 113 batters...This was Mike Schmidt's rookie season. He struck out 136 times in 367 at bats to go with 18 home runs and 52 RBI. Greg Luzinski led the ball club with 29 homers, 97 RBI, 174 base hits, and 76 runs scored. Bill Robinson was next with 25 home runs and 65 runs batted in. Willie Montanez drove in 65 runs and finished second on the team in base hits (145) and runs scored (69)...Wayne Twitchell, Ken Brett, and Jim Lonborg tied Carlton for the team lead in victories. Twitchell was second to Carlton on the pitching staff with 169 strikeouts. He also led the hurlers with five shutouts. The staff ERA was 3.99 (10th in the N.L.) and their 49 complete games were tops in the league...The team batting average was .249 with 134 home runs for the season...The Phils finished at the bottom of the NL East but only 11 ½ games behind the pennant-winning Mets. The two teams tied their season series, 9-9.
